THANK YOU!

First of all thank you all for the enthusiastic response to our very first newsletter! We are glad you enjoyed the read.

Roadmap

We want to share with you the recent developments within Mobility Online in the upcoming months and years.

First up, we are working hard on the implementation of "Erasmus without paper" (EWP); which means that all documentation regarding the Erasmus scholarship has to be done digitally starting in the academic year 2022/2023.

Next to this, we are also busy with an optimalisation project, which includes multiple aspects of Mobility Online. A couple of examples: a link to AFAS for quicker user provisioning and having supervisors available "real time", a map showing information on all partner institutions for selecting universities to which a student wants to go. Other examples are revising steps in the workflow / pipeline to make them more efficient and finding a way to highlight applications within the system, which are approaching a deadline due to VISA requirements or in order to process a grant in Poll   How often do you work with Mobility Online?

Let's talk: Terminology

Within Mobility Online there are two views of a process to collect data regarding the activity: (1) pipelines and (2) workflows.

Pipeline: For the employees, the steps to collect this data are grouped within a so-called pipeline. An employee can always see all the steps within a pipeline as defined in the user's role and thus can assess where an application of a student is with regards to finalizing the mobility.

Here at the UT, we know the following pipelines: (1) Internships, (1a) Internships – Erasmus, (1b) Internships – Non-Erasmus, (2) Graduation (Standard), (3) Graduation (Extended), (3a) Graduation – Erasmus, (3b) Graduation – Non-Erasmus, (4) Courses Abroad, (4a) Courses Abroad – Erasmus, (4b) Courses Abroad – Non-Erasmus, and (5) Other Activities.

Workflow: For the students, the steps to collect this data are grouped within a so-called workflow. For a workflow, the next step will only open up to editing, after the current step has been completed. The completion of the step is sometimes an activity done by the student and sometimes an approval to be granted from UT backoffice.
