

A letter to myself

To myself in the present, I arrive at the future now. I stepped out of the time machine and saw more people on the road than two years ago. Yes, I found I have travelled to two years later in the future. Now I am at the gate of our school. I saw some new restaurants around the school and some old shops were closed down. I saw my friends and myself. We are about to face the college entrance examination now. The scores are important, so you need to study hard from now on! Then I went back to my home by subway. I saw the advertisement of the coronavirus' vaccine. This is the contribution of the scientists. Finally I met my parents. They are older now. But they are still happy and healthy. The science developed quickly, and that made people's life better. The whole country is safe and happy now. Although the economy is still recovering, our society is harmonious and beautiful. So don't worry too much and do your best to live and study. Hope you can see the great future.
