

Dr A.G. Sigurdardottir (Aldis)
Assistant Professor

I'm honoured to have the opportunity to stand for election to the Faculty Council BMS. BMS will soon be entering into a new era of academic leadership by merging groups, and it will be as important as ever for the faculty to work collaboratively to meet the university goals jointly. I hope to apply my broad range of negotiation experiences to this challenge, and I will be eager to get input from my colleagues about how we can help them meet their goals in research, teaching and service. Therefore, I am interested in joining the Faculty council BMS because:

- a) I want to learn more about the committee's role in the university system,
- b) I want to be heard, and
- c) I want to be able to affect my work environment for the better.
