

Anna Bos-Nehles running for membership of the Faculty Council BMS

I think I can greatly contribute to the new Faculty Council BMS and help the faculty board to make effective policy because of five reasons. First, I have nearly 20 years of experience as a BMS employee starting as a PhD student. Second, I have experience with faculty council work since I was a member of the 2018-2020 faculty council. Third, as a chair of an examination board of the programmes BMS is involved in, I can advise the faculty board about the needs of the programmes and the consequences of a policy for the programmes. Fourth, being the Teaching and Learning Fellow of the BMS faculty, I know about the educational developments, trends and needs of the faculty. Fifth, as an HRM scholar, I believe I can advise the faculty board on their developments in the rewards and recognition and talent development policy. I am very much looking forward to helping the faculty board to make the BMS faculty a great place to work.
