

Evelien Rietberg

To introduce myself, I am a secretary within the STePS department and secretary for the Faculty Council.

I've been working for the Faculty Council since 2012 in which I am the "neutral partner" between the dean, managing director and chair of the Faculty Council.

During my work the past 4 years I have experienced that it is time to have a Faculty Council member from the support staff (OBP). We all know that there are quite some challenges the upcoming years, which will also involve support staff. Wouldn't it be good that both parties (academic and support) participate in our BMS Faculty Council and that we will work in close collaboration towards a strong and healthy faculty?
