

EXPERIENCEING A TERRIBLE FUTURE

Jip and Janneke were at school when they suddenly felt very dizzy. Everything around them began to spin and they felt like they were being swept away by a wild river. When they regained consciousness, they were in Professor Barbaras' laboratory. He pushed them into the time machine and flashed them into the future. There they saw that things were awfully bad: education was terrible and the whole earth was broken and dirty. When they returned, they realized that things really had to change and decided to make a movie to make people realize how terrible things were in the world. That movie ended up being played in all the theaters and a game was made from it. Everyone started to realize how bad things were with the earth and education started to improve again. Everyone began to feel happy again and treat the earth better. Jip and Janneke won every Nobel prize there was and became world famous.